Morris Stresses Today's ROTC Poll

★ Open House At VTI May Draw 2,000

Some 2,000 persons are expected to attend the fourth annual open house today and Saturday at SIU's Vocational-Technical Institute.

Marvin P. Hill, acting director of VTI, said advanced registrations have been received from a number of high schools in the area.

Each of the 26 major fields of study will have displays and demonstrations to acquaint the visitors with their work, Hill said.

The open house activities run from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday. Guided tours will be conducted.

AFROTC Polls Taken Today

Students and faculty members will vote today in an opinion poll to be used by the University in its consideration of whether to change ROTC to an elective program.

The polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Students will need an Activity Card to vote. Cards are available in the Activities Office if a student doesn't have one.

Polling places will be in Room H of the Center, in front of Old Main and Woody Hall, at the VTI Student Center, Lentz Hall and Small Group Housing.

All undergraduates and graduate students are eligible to vote. A current activity card or fee statement is required to vote.

The University is considering the change because they have been offered the opportunity to extend ROTC to the Edwardsville campus if both campuses are changed into elective programs.

If the program goes voluntary, the Carbondale campus will offer both a four-year and a two-year program, while Edwardsville will have just a two-year program.

Self-Sectioning Plan Set for Fall

Seniors and graduate students will section themselves for the 1965 fall quarter rather than having a sectioner in the Sectioning Center do it.

According to Robert A. McGrath, registrar, "It is hoped that this change will reduce the amount of time such students need to take in registering and also that it will permit more rapid sectioning of other students."

The change in procedure is an experimental one and the results of fall registration will determine whether this system will continue or be

Editors Must Moralize

Crusading Spirit, New Breed of Reporters Needed in American Press, Cervi Says

The average daily newspaper in America is old fashioned, and withering at a noticeable rate, and is cheap and tawdry in the light of attainable standards.

So said Eugene Cervi, editor and publisher of Cervi's Rocky Mountain Journal in Denver, Colo. Cervi delivered the 12th annual Elijah Parish Lovejoy memorial lecture Thursday in conjunction with Journalism Week activities.

According to Cervi, the complacent newspapers are being replaced by the "show business" world of radio and television, and unless something is done to alter the problem, the American press will become the oaf of the communications world.

However, Cervi later emphasized the fact that he does not despair about the future of American journalism. "It will change, but not fade away," he said.

But, in order to sustain itself in the present world, the newspapers of America are going to have to break away from the stigma of just being a rewrite organization for vast industrial complexes, he continued.

Cervi is concerned about the loss of freedom of the press because many of today's newspapers exist largely to carry messages into the home for corporations such as General Electric, General Motors and General Mills.

"If press freedom is lost, it will be not because it was

By Bob Reincke
President Delyte W. Morris answered questions ranging from campus communication to compulsory ROTC at the first of a series of campus press conferences Thursday night.

A crowd of about 120 persons listened as the president was quizzed by members of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society, and several other students.

One of the problem areas dealt with was that of communication. Morris said that the lack of communication at the University was a problem that plagued him day by day.

"We are trying all possibilities," he said, "but we have only been able to reach a segment of these."

He added that he thought a press conference such as that held Thursday night was an "excellent idea" for establishing better communication between the student body and the administration. The president also said he would be "personally grateful for any other ideas of ways to improve communications."

Vote Could Affect Decision, Student Press Parley Told

As to the importance of today's student and faculty opinion poll concerning the future of compulsory Air Force ROTC, the president said, "The opinion poll will play a very important part in the final decision on the future of ROTC at Southern. Negotiations have not progressed so far that the poll will not affect the final decision."

Morris said any decision would have both good and bad effects for the students.

"Those who value a voluntary program would be pleased with that type of outcome simply because it is just that—voluntary," he said.

"But if the voluntary program is dropped," the president added, "this will have an effect on the activities of the campus and the area."

He pointed out that the ROTC program provides many activities and services that would be missed by both students and area residents.

"I hope we can get the largest possible evaluation of opinion from the poll, and let us hope that in the end we can come up with the wisest decision," he concluded.

Morris also said that he has hoped that there will be a growth process in the aspiration level of student government to concern itself with "important matters." He explained that he meant by this such matters as methods of teaching and curricular questions the students may have.

"It has been a matter of gratification to me that there has been a steady growth from picayune matters in the direction of matters of concern, and that they have been approached with reason."

Morris said that he hoped the trend continues so that campus problems can be handled rationally and constructive proposals can be made to solve them.

The president said that the future of the experimental final exam system will depend on future polls of students and faculty, and added that he had not heard any results from any polls taken in the past concerning the new schedule.

"A new standard of excellence in journalism, a new breed of reporters and a general upgrading in newspaper policies and public interest in significant events are vital issues in the upcoming world of mass communications, according to Cervi.

Moral purposes and standards will also be an issue, he said. "I moralize a lot in my newspaper. I wouldn't give you a nickel for a newspaper whose editor didn't moralize. I suspect that the lack of moral purpose in the American press is precisely why criticism of it has reached a crescendo."

Casting of 'Firebugs' to Start With Next Week's Tryouts

Casting for the SIU production of the play "The Firebugs" will begin with tryouts Tuesday and Wednesday at the Southern Playhouse, at 7:30 p.m. Roles are open to everyone on the campus.

SIU's production of the play will be directed and designed by Moredecai Gorelik, research professor of theatre, who also did the translation of the play.

Gorelik directed a production of the play last December at California State College in Los Angeles. While teaching at California State, Gorelik was the principal speaker at the Southern California district conference of the American Educational Theater Association.

"The Firebugs" has had more than 50 American productions to date. It is a play remarkable for its theatricalism and its sardonic humor, Gorelik said.

The Swiss author of the play, Max Frisch, is from a country that has managed to keep itself out of two world wars and the existing Cold War. This perhaps makes him able to look with some detachment upon the spectacle of middle-class behavior in countries threatening each other with nuclear incineration, he added.

The bourgeois citizen faced with this terror either closes his eyes in hopes that it will go away, or puts himself in the hands of the fire-happy incendiaries, with results that are not surprising, Gorelik said.

P. U., SPU

Two or three weeks ago while walking through the University Center I saw three people whose presence at Southern stopped me in my tracks. There, to my right, in person, were Ringo Starr, Gabby Hayes (looking rather young for his days), and a very ethnic-looking young lady who — though obviously a world figure — I did not recognize. I rushed to the table at which these famous persons were seated to obtain autographs for my little sister. Working my way through the crowd surrounding the celebrities, I discovered my efforts were to no avail; for the three people were only members of the Student Peace Union. My excitement wilted and was replaced by a combination of amusement and mild scorn.

There before me were three college students trying — perhaps consciously, but probably subconsciously, to get attention for their cause (which then concerned American policy in Viet Nam) by dressing either shoddily or radically and letting their hair and/or beards grow to uncommon and unruly lengths. I never saw the replacements for the original three, but I imagine they probably resembled Hopalong Cassidy, Bob Dylan, and Joan Baez.

Individuality and eccentricity are fine. But when one sees people dressed and groomed like some of SIU's Student Peace Union members all over this campus and other campuses across the nation, he realizes that all of these men and women are conforming to the objective they are trying to achieve — nonconformity.

Whether they are campaigning for U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam, rights for the Negro (a cause I firmly believe in), or any other noble movement, I will not listen to them. No one can be persuaded by persons they do not respect, and the members of the Student Peace Union here at Southern belittle their own intelligence and sincerity by their appearance.

Open to All The Word, Southern Style

by D. O. Volente

Book XI

The Interfraternity Council Wednesday night passed a resolution which states that the fraternities at SIU "do not use any discriminatory rush practices based on race, nationality, or creed."

This is an important milestone in the formal and informal acceptance of a moral decision which has been keeping the fraternities from making social progress as of late. Too many people still believe fraternities are arm-chair drinking clubs, founded on the precepts of snobbery, immaturity, and discrimination. It is with this stigma that fraternities have had to defend themselves for years. It is about time for the public to wake up to the fact that the fraternity system is a valuable and dynamic social institution. Fraternities should no longer be on the defensive. Have you given them an open-minded unprejudiced chance to be understood? "Don't knock it unless you can improve it."

Fraternity Rush will be held April 25, 26, and 27 (Sunday, Monday and Tuesday) from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Why not stop by and talk with these people; get their true opinions, and don't be influenced by rumors.

Dionysus vs. ROTC

The fourth objective of the AFROTC program, as stated in the Cadet Guide, is "to arouse in the student the desire to become an officer of the Air Force." It seems ironic that a school which has acquired a General Studies program to broaden the views of its students should require its male students to attend a course which narrows those views in that it encourages a single career.

For those who seek a military career, there are military schools. For those who seek an education or an extended social life, there are likewise educational and social schools. A male student who is pursuing a degree in psychology or one whose main interests are wine and women should not be required to parade across a dusty drill field or sit through classroom discussions about airplanes and how to salute your superior superbly.

Many high schools also have similar required programs which are equally unneeded and unwanted. This means that many males waste a ridiculous number of valuable hours and days in high school and college so that they may get drafted and spend two years in the army and four years on reserve.

Fie on it! It seems odd that there is no prerequisite at SIU that all male students have had at least two years experience in the Boy Scouts of America.

R.A. Hughes

And the faithful will recall that The Word was not to be seen in God's country last week. But they who listen carefully shall be shown why it is that this should have been so. A great misfortune befell these inspired scribes who are known collectively as D.O. Volente: the Agents of the Devil who inhabit the Advise and Sectioning centers held this worthy group captive. It was only upon reaching the Seventh Circle that we were readmitted to the World of Light, such as it is. Even at that, we had a hell of a time.

There are those who would ask what we inspired scribes did during the interim, which is known as the Spring Break. In answer to this query, this worthy collective group had a divine time. Foam flowed fairly freely from the fountains. And it should be noted that we hope not to reap as we sowed. And many Conelrads were produced, and this worthy program was moved from the Sabbath to Saturday, and shall now be heard by the faithful at 5:05 on the afternoon of Saturday on WINI, the Voice of the Lord in Southern Illinois — 1420. Thus, Saturday is now proclaimed to be the official Sabbath since it is on this day that the Voice of the Lord is heard in this arid land.

And an agent of the Lord, Howard Longfellow, made the timely comment that it was amazing that these corn-fed scribes could belt out the satire like pros. Longfellow continued, "When Volente writes satire, by God it's satire." (Further details will be heard this week on Conelrad.)

And it might here be noted that D.O. Volente is amazed that those corn-fed professors are able to belt out the chaff like pros and make the Daily Nothing as insane, if not more so, than the SIU Guidebook. And D.O. Volente is e'er awestruck that the Lord permits those self-same professors to cast false pearls before real swine in what are jocularly called Journalism Classes. And D.O. Volente does not doubt that these professors would censor God Himself if he "embarrassed the University."

"Freedom Now"

by Roberta Smola

Civil rights or the legal and moral right of the individual to certain privileges such as freedom of speech and freedom of religion have long been the subject of rational debate, bitter argument, and even bloody strife. Most of us are familiar, for example, with the persecution of the French Huguenots under Louis the 14th of France, the Spanish Inquisition, the Hungarian Rebellion of 1956, and even our own American Revolution, all attempts of those involved to attain the freedom of which civil rights is a basic and vital component. Today in the United States we have our own greatly publicized and often sensationalized struggles of minority groups (primarily the American Negro but also including the American Indian, the Mexican, and other lesser minority groups) to be granted the civil rights guaranteed by the Constitution as well as other human rights such as the right to a good job, the right to the superior education required to make this job a reality, and the right to decent living conditions.

These groups have adopted as their slogan two words, "Freedom now," which bear careful examination. Freedom, for example, certainly does not mean or even imply license or the complete lack of restraint, but rather personal liberty coupled with social responsibility. (We have not only the right to express our opinions and desires by voting for the candidate of our choice but also the responsibility to do so in an intelligent, conscientious manner.) Now does not mean twenty years from today, next week, or even tomorrow. We all know that tomorrow never comes. Now means exactly what it states — today.

The slogan "Freedom now" tends to affect many individuals adversely. They refuse to accept either the spirit of the slogan or the words themselves. "Just give us time," they reply to the ever increasing demands of minority groups for liberty, turning deaf ears to the obvious response that time in itself without immediate well-ordered action accomplishes nothing. One hundred years of time has failed to give the Negro full social equality. Nearly two hundred years have failed to enfranchise the American Indian in many instances.

Or, "You can't legislate love," they smugly contend (a statement of no little truth) refusing to recognize that the members of the minority groups are not interested in obtaining love, being primarily and for the most part exclusively interested rather in securing their inalienable and ostensibly God-given rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. (I firmly believe, however, that complete educational, cultural, occupational and social equality would ultimately lead to inter-personal acceptance and eventually love. I am not necessarily speaking of romantic love and intermarriage but rather the altruistic love of brotherhood.)

Finally, these opponents assert that the demands of these groups are completely unreasonable. Yet good moral, political and social reasons do exist for working to assure these minorities their freedom in the form of civil rights.

First of all, discrimination in any form obviously runs contrary to the Judeo-Christian principles and doctrines accepted by the majority of the members of our society. We are after all our brother's keeper, and as such we have a definite moral responsibility to insure his well-being. No one can truthfully deny that some degree of freedom is vital to any man's well-being and personal development.

Politically, if we are to have a true democracy, these groups must immediately receive their civil rights, particularly the right to vote. Disenfranchised, educationally handicapped peoples are susceptible to the seeds of rebellion such as those sown by such subversive organizations as the Black Muslims or even the Communists. Therefore, political freedoms of the minorities are of supreme importance to the maintenance of our American way of life (contrary to the contentions of racist groups, which assert that Negro enfranchisement on a mass scale will eventually spell the end of our American way of life).

President Johnson has coined the phrase "The Great Society." In reality we have little need for such premature nomenclature, however. We cannot have a Great Society or even a Mediocre Society when many of our society's members are culturally, educationally, and socially handicapped. We have only an unacceptable farce which would in truth be labeled the Poor Society. A great society certainly cannot contain certain members who lag far behind the bulk of their contemporaries as evidenced by the southern Negro in his ramshackle hovel (or the northern Negro in his lamentable slum), the migrant Mexican in his concentration camp-like barracks, or the southwestern Indian in his adobe hut — largely because these people have been somehow deprived of the educational methods to remedy their state or the vote to change these deplorable conditions which must be more than passively deplored but also actively abolished.

Many individuals who all accept both the words and the spirit of "Freedom now" are yet unable to see exactly how such a campaign could be satisfactorily instituted. Actually civil rights groups such as CORE (the Congress on Racial Equality) and SNCC (the Student NonViolent Coordinating Committee) on the national scene and other organizations of a more limited local scope are already implementing such a program to put "Freedom now" into practice — working tirelessly and fearlessly in some areas of the country to register eligible voters, to end employment discrimination, to attain and maintain acceptable housing conditions, to develop adequate and integrated (in both senses of the word) schools and other more informal educational, recreational, and cultural facilities, to promote community welfare, to awaken the general public from smug apathy, and in the end to obtain a better way of life for all Americans.

In conclusion, there is really only one more thing to be said — but most of all to be meant — the simple, uncomplicated plea of "Freedom now."

Peking Turns Thumbs Down On Johnson's Asia Peace Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson won wide applause around the non-Communist world Thursday for his Southeast Asia peace offer, but a ringing rejection came from one of the most important quarters—Red China.

Peking's turndown was expected. It had been predicted by U.N. Ambassador Aclai E. Stevenson at a Cabinet meeting shortly before word of the Chinese broadcast denunciation arrived on news wires.

Stevenson, talking with newsmen after the White House session, held out hope that the Soviet Union would give a more "thoughtful" response. He declined to forecast North Viet Nam's reply—generally regarded as crucial at this stage. Other White House sources said Johnson, scanning the international horizon for Communist reaction, does not believe the Reds are ready for Viet Nam peace talks now.

U.S. officials said that while the Soviet leadership continued to denounce U.S. activities in Viet Nam, the Johnson offer was published in the government-controlled Soviet press. They said it was published also in Hanoi, which has opposed negotiations hitherto.

But Johnson went ahead with his two-pronged peace campaign announced in his Baltimore speech Wednesday night while Washington diplomacy gave the Communists more time to consider.

The President offered to engage in "unconditional discussion" with interested governments looking toward a Viet Nam peace settlement. He also proposed a $1-billion U.S. contribution to economic development of Southeast Asia, whether the war ends or not.

The President also proposed that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant launch the plan.

Civil Rights Leaders Map Plans For Massive Registration Drive

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Civil rights leaders are drawing plans for a Southwide campaign to register Negro voters and a Northern big-city crusade to preach nonviolence.

Committee Amends Right-to-Vote Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—House members at work on President Johnson's right-to-vote bill rejected Thursday a proposal that would have limited its coverage to counties with big Negro populations.

Such a limitation would exempt sections of Virginia from the bill's terms. It still is part of the revised voting rights legislation accepted by the Senate Judiciary Committee which also is considering the measure and is under instructions to report its version of the bill to the Senate on Friday.

will be enlisted in the voter campaign outlined Thursday by the Rev. Andrew Young, executive secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"We are planning to see how many we can get registered from Alabama to Virginia and including north Florida," Young said in an interview. He is a key man in the SCLC headed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

He said the Negro voter drive in Alabama would continue to expand. SCLC staff members are working now to mobilize or bolster the campaign in six counties.

The Alabama House approved and sent to the Senate a proposal to limit the state voter literacy test to the ability to read and write. The difficult test now required has been under attack by Negro leaders.

At Selma, County Judge Hugh Mallory jailed two Negroes for contempt when they refused to move from one section of the courtroom to another. One was the Rev. James Bevel of SCLC.

Viet War Has Claimed 455 American Lives

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new Pentagon compilation of casualties in Viet Nam showed Thursday that 455 U.S. military personnel have lost their lives there.

The total includes 329 deaths through April 5 resulting from action by hostile forces and 126 from noncombat causes including airplane and helicopter accidents. Similar reports are issued periodically by the Pentagon.

Vote Is 236-191

House Passes Medicare Plan, Senate Action Expected in June

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed Thursday night a $6-million bill to provide hospitalization and optional medical benefits for the elderly and boost Social Security retirement payments.

The measure now goes to the Senate, which may not vote on it until June.

Final House action followed rejection, 236-191, of a proposed Republican substitute. The GOP measure was similar to the administration bill but lacked the element of increased payroll taxes for hospitalization.

The bill would make the greatest single change in the Social Security system since it was enacted in 1935, directly benefiting some 20 million persons and raising payroll taxes for most workers and their employers.

By writing a health benefit into the Social Security retirement plan, it would climax efforts dating back to 1942 and especially intensified during the past eight years when "medicare" became a fighting word in congressional committee rooms.

Charges and denials that the system is a springboard into socialized medicine continued to sound during the closing debate.

The farthest-reaching health benefit under the legislation—going to practically all Americans 65 or older—would be the right to a maximum of 60 days hospitalization and 20 days nursing home care for each illness. The patient would pay the first $40.

Available to the elderly who wanted it would be an additional insurance plan covering doctor bills and some incidentals. This would cost $3 a month, deducted from Social Security payments or collected directly, and matched by the Treasury. The benefits would apply after the first $50 of annual expense, paying 80 per cent of the remainder.

The existing Kerr-Mills Act system of state-federal health services for the indigent and low-income aged would be stepped up with increased federal funds, easier eligibility requirements and increased coverage—taking in dependent children, the blind and disabled as well as the aged.

Old age retirement payments under Social Security would be increased 7 per cent across the board, with a minimum increase of $4 a month. Accordingly, any retiree could sign up for the optional health insurance and still have more cash in hand than he does now.

Both the payroll tax rate and the wage base on which it applies would go up. The first increase, effective next year, would mean that a worker earning as much as $5,600 would pay $69.90 more during the year than he now pays, and his employer would pay a like amount.

Tall Right-Hander Warms Up For Baseball Pitching Chores

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson warmed up a bit in the bright sunshine Thursday and promised to help open the American League baseball season.

As usual, he will get in free when the Senators open up against the Boston Red Sox at D.C. Stadium Monday.

Observing a tradition of more than a half century—started by his late father-in-law Clark Griffith—league President Joe Cronin visited the White House to present a season pass to the President.

The ceremony was held on the lawn outside Johnson's office. It was a warm, sunny day.

A reporter asked the traditional cliché question, "how's your arm?"

"It's like the sunshine," Johnson said, then bent his right arm a few times but didn't try any practice pitches.

"I'll see you out there at the ball park," Johnson told Cronin.

Johnson, a tall right-hander, donned a fielder's glove, flexed his arm a few times, then let fly a line drive pitch last spring in his first start as President.

Constitutional Amendments Filed with Illinois Legislature

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Two constitutional amendments to allow a flat rate state income tax and remove the state school superintendent as an elective office were filed Thursday in the Illinois Legislature.

The amendment for revising the revenue article would authorize a 3 per cent flat rate income levy that could be raised to a top of 5 per cent with voter approval.

Reds Reopen Berlin Autobahn

BERLIN (AP) — The Communists reopened the Berlin autobahn late Thursday night after a five-hour shutdown and permitted British and American military vehicles to pass.

It was the second shutdown of the day on the lifeline route between West Germany and West Berlin.

The first closedown of the day lasted three hours and was lifted at the challenge of a U.S. convoy.

in a statewide referendum.

It is supported in principle by six organizations, including the Illinois Agricultural Association, State Chamber of Commerce, Illinois Education Association, Illinois AFL-CIO Federation of Labor and Illinois Retail Merchants Association.

Rep. Clyde Choate of Anna, Democratic majority leader, submitted the amendment to make the school superintendent appointive.

Choate said the purpose is to take politics out of education.

Vincent Strikes Out 14 as Salukis Bombard Illinois College 18 - 1

SIU's veteran-laden baseball team picked up where it left off last year as it crushed Illinois College 18-1 in its season opener Thursday afternoon.

The Salukis, who won 16 in a row before tasting defeat last year, gave notice that they may be just as tough if not tougher this season.

They sprayed hits to all fields almost at will and got a masterful pitching performance from righthander Gene Vincent. Thus they celebrated the inauguration of their sparkling new field.

The 5-10, 155-pounder scattered three harmless singles as he pitched shutout ball for 8 and 2/3 inning before tiring in the ninth. He struck out 14 en route to the easy victory, the 17th of his career against three losses.

Vincent also sparked at the plate as he was second for four including a grand slam home run in the big seventh inning. The Salukis put the game away for keeps in the inning with a 9-run outburst.

Not that there was any doubt. The Salukis were in command from the outset. They picked up two runs in the first, added pairs in the third and fourth, and then put the icing on the victory cake with three in the ninth.

The Blueboys didn't even muster a minute's threat until the ninth. In fact they couldn't even get a base runner past second until Jim Downer reached base on a throwing error to open the final frame.

The Blueboy first baseman then took second on an infield out and scored on reserve third baseman Dan Runkle's single to left center. The Salukis almost met themselves on the basepaths as they blasted out 19 hits off three Illinois College pitchers. A hitbatter, a wild pitch, an error walk and a single by Kent Collins led to two Saluki tallies in the first.

In the fourth they picked up two more, as Bob Bernstein singled home Al Peludar, and hot-hitting sophomore Paul Pavesich tripled home Bernstein with his first of four hits.

Three hits in the fourth upped the Saluki margin to 6-0. After one was out, Collins doubled home Gib Snyder and then Peludar did the same for the hot-hitting left-fielder.

Things really exploded in the seventh, when Vincent unloaded his grand slam and five other hits. Three bases on balls and two errors accounted for the nine big runs.

Coach Glenn (Abe) Martin's club was not through yet, as they combined back to back singles by John Siebel, Collins, and Peludar and another hit by Pavesich for three little-needed insurance runs.

The Salukis now travel to Kentucky Wesleyan Saturday for a doubleheader with the Panthers. Martin named veteran John Hotz and soph-

LOST

I'm a fun-loving, 9 month old puppy, I make friends with everyone and my name is Sniffy, dog tag number 426. I'm part Dalmation and part other things, like black on my back. I'm not quite as long as a Dalmation or as tall as one, but I'm a little bit bigger around.

My sister, Pepper, who really looks like a Dalmation, is very lonesome; my little owner, Hoxie, is also very unhappy and lonely without me. The boss-lady at our house at 204 W. College last saw me on campus by Brown Auditorium April 1, 1965 and this is no joke! If anyone knows of my whereabouts please call 7-8307; the person who returns me will receive a $5 reward. 458
